Stand-in Cinderella goes to the ball at lights switch-on

It was a case of a fairy tale coming true for one Kingston University worker after she pulled on the glass slipper at the 11th hour to play Cinderella at Surbiton's Christmas lights switch on.

Student vice-president Lucy Williams, 23, came to the rescue after a miscommunication meant the Rose Theatre's Midnight Princess actress could not come to the ball.

Kingston Council staff turned fairy godmother when Faye Castelow could not make it last Thursday, asking Miss Williams to step in.

She was accompanied by her very own Prince Charming, fellow student Michael Toy, who she said was not keen on dressing up in tights but got into the spirit of it.

She said: "It just proves that fairy tales really can come true. I have been waiting for this moment since I was two."

Surbiton Rotary club chairman Yogan Yoganathan, who helped organised the Christmas switch on, said it was disappointing the real Cinderella could not attend but thanked the pair for stepping in.

He said: "They were so good I did not even realise they were students. I thought they were professionals."

The Rose's version of Cinderella begins on Friday.

Park petition may force council into climbdown

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Councillors may have to re-think plans to put a cycle lane through Fairfield recreation ground, after the proposal attracted a 300-signature petition.

Residents living close to the Kingston park were outraged to be refused permission to speak at a meeting of the Kingston town neighbourhood committee last week, where the scheme was approved.

Many homeowners who had turned up for the meeting left the council chamber in disgust after chairman Dennis Doe moved to a vote after hearing one submission from the public gallery.

Several residents submitted council-issued pink slips before the meeting, requesting the right to speak.

And now those same residents have called in the plans, by submitting a petition signed by 321 people.

It means the decision will be reviewed by the council's scrutiny panel, and if the residents' objections are deemed valid, will be given back to the committee to reconsider.

Jonathan Gibbs, who helped orchestrate the petition, said residents' concerns centered around safety.

He said: "Generally, the feeling is it would be more dangerous by putting in a cycle lane."

"There's a concern that by funnelling pedestrians and cyclists into the same space you invite danger."

"The rec is very heavily used by dog walkers, children and families and football teams, where people can wander around without disturbance."

"By putting faster right-of-way traffic you stop that free flow."

Another objector, Carol Biley, said the petition was the result of Kingston Council failing to listen to all residents' views.

She said: "We had no difficulty in obtaining just over 300 signatures. We weren't saying we were for or against it. We just wanted to speak about the proposals."

"Most people were concerned about safety, but we're not anti-cycling. Many of the people who have signed the petition are cyclists."

Councillor Doe said: "There was sufficient information in front of the committee to make a decision."

"The gallery clearly were not happy and I gave them two options. I said in the long run they can decide not to vote for their councillors who are here tonight, and in the short term they can call the decision in."

Objections: Some of the residents submit their petitions on Fairfield recreation ground

Beating the bullies: Fiona Case and Barbara Bishop

Empowering pop music

A Kingston mum has set up her own music company and released an anti-bullying song just in time for anti-bullying week.

Fiona Case, 41, set up Zeamu Music with her husband Simon and friend Barbara Bishop earlier this year.

They were inspired to set up the music company to create pop music that children could relate to.

Sung by children and fronted by a family of animated characters, the lyrics cover friendship, school, being misunderstood, beating bullying and having fun with family and friends.

The trio, who say they hope to put the magic back into music, released the debut album this week with the special single Beat the Bullies.

Mrs Bishop said: "We all love music and our idea was born out of being parents wanting to provide fresh, innocent and fun music for our kids that they can identify with."

The album is available on zeamumusic.com and on iTunes.

A fifth of questions unanswered

Kingston Hospital is leaving unanswered one in five questions posed by the public into the care and treatment of patients.

Last year, the hospital declined to answer in full more than a fifth of Freedom of Information (FoI) requests including on drug and alcohol treatment for young people, the cost of overseas patients at the hospital and breaches of patient confidentiality.

Information managers at the hospital cited exemption 12 to turn down 67 requests, with just over a third denied because the request would take too long, or cost too much to process.

The law states public bodies can refuse to answer requests if they take more than 18 hours, or cost more than £450, to complete.

A spokeswoman for Kingston Hospital said: "The volume of FoI requests received has risen by over 550 per cent over the past seven years."

"Exemption 12 does not relate to the difficulty of the question, but rather to the intensity of the resources involved in providing the response and the subsequent cost to the organisation."

Requests are also taking longer to process than the legal time limit of 20 working days laid down by the Government, with 55 of 332 requests, or slightly less than a fifth, coming back late.

A total of 11 requests were more than two months late, while a question on the hospital's agency staff spend took three months, and was still not answered fully.

Bonnie Green, from watchdog Richmond Link, said: "Any public body has a duty to respond in one way or another. They certainly should not be leaving people waiting."

Squatters arrested in police raid

Police tactics which saw 30 police officers dressed in riot gear arrest six squatters for alleged petty crimes have been criticised.

Seven squatters had been staying in the old Quakers meeting hall in Eden Street next door to Primark for a fortnight before the raid in the early hours of Wednesday, November 21.

Most were arrested on suspicion of handling stolen goods and fare evasion but have since been bailed.

Myk Zeitlin from the Advisory Service for Squatters said:

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

"These offences would not warrant an arrest at 1am – it does not fit. But these things do happen. Riot gear sounds particularly heavy going."

He said the arrestees may have a case to sue police if they were arrested unlawfully.

Squatter Nick, 26, said: "They got us on bogus charges like bike theft. They came in at about 1am – about 30 of them all dressed in riot gear."

"They boarded the building up afterwards but some of us managed to get back in to get our things. Then we all went our separate ways. I am now in central London."

New squatting laws have made it a criminal offence to squat in a residential property but squatting in a non-residential property is seen as a civil matter to be dealt with by landlords.

A police spokeswoman said the number of officers involved in the arrest of the squatters was based on the believed threat to their safety and public law and order.

She said: "In this instance our operational strength was based on the fact that local intelligence indicated up to 20 people may have been in the premises and we had also received reports of the presence of dogs."

"Twelve squatters were, in fact, in the building of whom six were arrested. Seven of the 30 officers attending were in full protective equipment as is standard procedure in such operations."

Primark was unavailable for comment as this newspaper went to press.

Rejects' gig pulled

A gig by legendary punk rockers Cockney Rejects has been postponed.

The east London band were due to headline Kingsmeadowlive, at Kingsmeadow stadium, this Saturday.

Organisers for Kingsmeadowlive put the cancellation down to the "media attention" surrounding AFC Wimbledon's FA Cup game with arch rivals MK Dons on Sunday.

A new date has yet to be finalised.

Santa and his helpers ready to say 'let there be lights'

New Malden will have the newest and possibly the borough's brightest Christmas lights this winter after an appeal raised thousands of pounds for the venture.

The Rotary Club of New Malden raised more than £7,000 to replace the old Christmas lights that had been used for years and reached the end of their useful life.

Thousands of children and families are expected to come along to the festive Christmas light switch-on in New Malden High Street on Friday from 5.30pm.

Michael Robson from the Rotary Club said: "Father Christmas will pass through the High Street on his sleigh with the mayor."

"All of his helpers – and us from the Rotary Club – will switch on the lights as he passes through."

"We are all very excited. He will also be giving out sweets in St George's Square."

The High Street will be closed off for the special event which has been a tradition since the 1920s.

Kingston and Surbiton have already had their lights switched on.

Mr Robson said: "We have gone to a lot of effort and it should be a bigger and better show. By raising so much money we have achieved something together with the community."

"It has been a very good local effort."

"We are very grateful." Almost 30 businesses, girl guides, the New Victoria Hospital and members of the public contributed to the lights appeal which was launched in May this year.

Teen busker on song to win second round

The second round of town centre busking saw teenage crooner James McDonough become the runaway winner last week.

Eight acts took part in the Kingston Spotlight competition, which entertained crowds of shoppers over the weekend.

But it was teenager James that nabbed the most votes this time round.

Ros Morgan, chief executive of Kingstonfirst, said: "The interest that Kingston Spotlight is generating is exceeding all of our expectations. Having such a range of entertainment throughout the town centre is proving popular with shoppers, while it is also a hit with the performers themselves, who are relishing the opportunity to take their acts to a fresh audience."

This week sees a record number of 16 acts competing.

Upcoming act: Thom Worth

Shoppers and residents are urged to get behind their favourite acts by voting for them to become the Brightest Spotlight of the Week. To support your favourite act, text 60777 at your standard network charge with the code of the act you like the most from Wednesday until midnight on Monday when voting ends.

Or email your votes to the Surrey Comet at newsdesk@surreycomet.co.uk

Certificates stolen from car

A woman who had her deceased mother's death certificate, marriage certificate and birth certificate stolen from a car park has been left devastated.

The documents were in a bag left hidden in the locked car at Kingston Riverside club in Lower Ham Road about 4pm on Wednesday, November 14.

A few hundred pounds of money and a passport were also stolen from the stationary vehicle that had its windows smashed despite only being in the car park for less than 15 minutes.

A Kingston police spokeswoman said: "The owner has been advised as no forensics nor CCTV of the immediate location were available, and no witnesses to the theft have come forward despite appeals, the case is closed unless further evidence comes to light."

Call 020 7161 8112 if you have any information on the theft.

Golfers on a roll in fundraiser day

The third British Bread Golf Open saw record numbers turn out to hit dough balls into the River Thames in aid of an arts charity.

The day involved whacking specially-made bread balls from the back of Woody's Bar, Ram Passage, into a giant floating golf hole.

About 120 people paid a £5 donation towards Creative Youth, which was behind the International Youth Arts Festival, which brought in just over £800 for the charity.

Councillor Barry O'Mahony, decked out in full golfing attire, arrived in confident mood on Sunday hoping to recapture the form that saw him crowned inaugural bread golf champ two years ago, but it was 13-year-old Sam Morgan who stormed into an early lead.

The youngster was leading right up until the last few watery holes when Ian Richardson's pitched shot was good enough to earn him the "green jacket".

Organiser Robin Hutchinson, the man behind Homage de Fromage and Surbiton Ski Sunday, said: "We were not sure this sporting event would catch the public imagination, but I think this is a true success."

Mum to sue for negligence

The mother of a man stabbed to death in Oceana says she will sue the club over "negligent door staff".

The club's owner Luminar is considering appealing to try to stop its licence being taken away after Jamie "Bullet" Sanderson, 20, was stabbed to death during a student party on October 25.

But during a licensing hearing last week, Oceana said it believed a security lapse had allowed a knife into the club past the metal detectors.

Jamie's mother Carol Sanderson, 48, said: "It is a joke. My son would still be

by TOM BARNES

alive if they had done their jobs properly."

She said: "Security has been exposed but still they want to open their club to make money. It is disrespectful to me and to my son's memory for them to re-open so soon."

"The kids should boycott the club because they are obviously not safe in there."

Mrs Sanderson, who lives in Southall, led a march against knife crime from her home to Ealing Common on Sunday.

She said: "There are people who want to retaliate for what happened to my son but I am telling people this madness must stop."

"No more fighting, not over my son, not over anything. It has to stop."

"This is a problem that everyone has to come together to stop. Mums and dads need to unite because these kids are killing each other and no one is doing anything about it."

"The Government is not helping them."

"No one is helping them."

Calling for a boycott of the club: Mrs Sanderson's son was stabbed to death

'Sophisticated security'

Clubbers at Oceana carried on partying despite the threat of permanent closure looming over the multimillion pound business.

The club said it had beefed up security since the fatal stabbing, bringing in more door staff and increasing CCTV to cover the entire club, as well as shutting Vibe Bar, said to attract a more violent crowd.

A spokesman for Luminar Leisure, which owns Oceana and the nearby Hippodrome, said the club would stay open while it considered its position, and described the council decision as "disappointing".

She said: "We would like to stress that the club has one of the most sophisticated search and security procedures in the UK, which proved invaluable to the police investigation and led to the arrest and charging of three people."

"Since the incident, we have conducted a further review of security systems and look forward to continuing to work closely with the Kingston community, licensing and police teams to maintain the safest possible environment for our customers."

"More than 300,000 people visit Oceana every year, making it one of the most popular venues in the UK. It's so sad that the few spoils it for the majority."

Council defends itself

Report: Barry O'Mahony and Derek Osbourne BT72074

Liberal Democrat Council leader Derek Osbourne dismissed a report from a Metropolitan Police licensing team which said the council had been "reluctant to take robust action" against Oceana.

Coun Osbourne said: "We do not accept the view of the officer in this report, or that the night-time economy as a whole needs to be overhauled."

His former deputy leader, Grove Ward Councillor Barry O'Mahony, said Labour Government legislation had made it difficult to tackle the problems.

He said: "However, we did hide behind that a little bit and could have been doing more, particularly for those residents living near Oceana who were clearly having a very difficult time."

Going Gaga

An outfit created by a Kingston University fashion graduate has been worn by global pop superstar Lady Gaga while on tour in South America.

The American singer, known for her flamboyant style, was photographed in Brazil wearing designs by Lydia Stedman, who graduated from Kingston University this summer.

The 22-year-old designer said: "It has all been so surreal. I'm a huge fan of Lady Gaga. She wears the most amazing outfits, but I could never have dreamed she would choose one of mine."

Many patients have confidence in their dentist treating their natural teeth but often feel that they are less capable in assisting them with their denture problems.

Revolutionary Techniques

The Denture Clinic has seen and helped with just about every conceivable denture problem that exists and has developed many new exclusive techniques to improve dentures and solve issues.

"I am so pleased with my lower denture I am returning for them to make the upper"
Miss C. Johnson, Kent

In recent years the clinic has also pioneered new systems including 3D dentures, and conventional dental implants for dentures to "clip" onto. For those who are not suitable for this Mini Dental Implants can often be a solution.

The Denture Clinic receives numerous referrals from general dentists and helps solve common patient frustrations with dentures.

"Denture Wearers' 5 Most Common Frustrations"

1. My Dentures are loose which I find embarrassing.
2. My Dentures are sore and painful when I chew.
3. I have never been happy with the appearance of my teeth and I hate having photos taken.
4. I am not able to chew food properly and can't order what I want at restaurants.
5. I have been told by my dentist that my Dentures are as good as I can expect which leaves me feeling depressed.

Surrey Sports
Centre

Sports centre could house green charity

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

An eco-charity may move into an empty sports and community centre under the Cambridge Road estate.

The Surrey Sports Centre has been empty since 2004 after the underground site was closed because of safety fears.

In that time, members of the Cambridge Road Estate Residents' Association have tried to get the centre re-opened as a leisure facility for the community, but has struggled to find funding and assistance.

But now creative arts charity Save the World Club has approached Kingston Council about re-locating to the site.

The Kingston-based organisation is on the lookout for new headquarters, before its current offices in Fairfield East are knocked down next year to make way for a new Quaker meeting hall.

Members of the newly-founded One Norbiton community group have welcomed Save the World Club's interest.

One Norbiton vice-chairman, Harry Hall, said he had spoken with Save the World Club and found its vision for the centre matched his own.

He said: "It is a bit more positive. They said they want it to be a joint project and they had ideas that were basically the same as mine."

"So yes, it is good news. Hopefully we will get things up and running soon."

Save the World chairman Mary Graham said the site was just one of several locations the charity was looking at as a potential home.

And although she expressed interest in the Surrey Sports Centre, she emphasised a deal over the site was far from complete.

She said: "Our need now is to find somewhere else to go and our great necessity is to be as close as possible to the area we serve."

"It is an ideal place to be to do the work we do. The idea would be we work very closely with a community we know very well and turn it into a community hub. But it is just not signed sealed and delivered. There is a long road ahead, but it is a road I wish to tread."

Helping hand for Pakistan

A Chessington councillor has announced plans to open a school for girls in his native Pakistan.

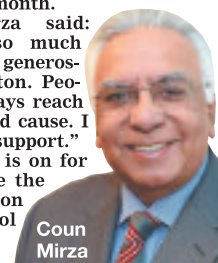

Councillor Shiraz Mirza said he felt inspired by 14-year-old Pakistani girl Malala Yousafzai who was shot in the head by Taliban gunmen after promoting education for women in the country.

He said: "This was a very inspiring story by a young girl and it made me want to do something for all the other girls in Pakistan that need education. This is not going to happen overnight, but I will make sure that it happens."

More than £1,000 has already been raised for the cause by donors who attended the third anniversary of the Shiraz Mirza Community Hall in Old Malden this month.

Coun Mirza said: "There is so much goodwill and generosity in Kingston. People here always reach out for a good cause. I have a lot of support."

The search is on for land to place the Royal Kingston Girls School Lahore.

Cat mutilations could be linked, say police

by TOM BARNES

tbarnes@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston police are looking back at the mutilation of a cat last year to see if it was killed in the same way as a cat whose head was cut off in Surbiton last month.

Police closed the case on an attack on a 19-year-old cat in Kingston due to lack of evidence but are now studying the death again.

They will look for similarities to the attack in Surbiton last month and weigh up the evidence before deciding whether to pursue an investigation.

Alex, an 11-month-old kitten was found decapitated in Iris Close, Surbiton, last month.

Owner Leila Frame was on a family holiday in Egypt when an unknown neighbour made the discovery, taking the pet to nearby Aspen Veterinary Surgery.

Head vet Peter Melville said the injuries suggested body parts were cut off by someone using a knife rather than during a fight with another animal.

To add to the distress the pet had been a final present from Miss Frame's dying mother to her seven-year-old daughter Lilly.

On hearing of the police investigation, Miss Frame said:

Sorely missed: Alex the cat is thought to have been mutilated

"This just strengthens my belief this was the work of one person.

"It is unnerving to think someone like that could be living around here.

"I know a lot of people around here are keeping their cats inside after what happened.

"We are trying to move on from what happened. It is still very sad. Today I went into the cupboard and still saw all the cat food."

A spokesman for Kingston police said: "Police can confirm an incident relating to a mutilated cat was reported and investigated in 2011.

"Following the initial investigation the case was closed due to lack of evidence.

"Both cases are now being studied for similarities and a decision will be made as to whether there is sufficient evidence for a dedicated investigation.

"Inquiries are ongoing and it is not appropriate to comment further at this stage."

Mums launch empower pop CD

A Kingston mum has set up her own music company and released an anti-bullying song just in time for anti-bullying week.

Fiona Case, 41, set up Zeamu Music with her husband Simon and friend Barbara Bishop earlier this year.

They were inspired to set up the music company to create pop music that children could relate to.

Sung by children and fronted by a family of animated characters, the lyrics cover friendship, school, being misunderstood, beating bullying and having fun with family and friends.

The trio, who say they hope to put the magic back into music, released the debut album this week with the special single Beat the Bullies.

Beating the bullies: Fiona Case and Barbara Bishop

The album is available on zeamu music.com and on iTunes.

TOO NARROW: Two cafes in Kingston town centre have had applications for outside dining rejected. Cafe Bernado in Richmond Road, and Cappadocia in Fife Road, both applied to Kingston Council for permission to put two tables and four chairs out in the pavement in front of their eateries. But councillors on the Kingston town neighbourhood committee rejected the applications, on the basis both pavements were too narrow.

Threatened a pregnant woman and children: Elvin, 26, Pepperrell, 21, and Gillett, 20

Thugs held blade to woman's face in raid

by MIKE PYLE

mike.pyle@london.newsquest.co.uk

Two Chessington men were part of a gang that threatened a pregnant woman and two children with golf clubs, a saw and bottles.

Chris Elvin, 26, Kyle Pepperrell, 21, Ben Gillett, 20, and a 16-year-old boy who cannot be named for legal reasons, pulled up outside a house in Oakhill Road, Sutton, at about 8pm on April 11.

A pregnant woman, 37, confronted the hooded gang, but they held a saw blade to her face and smashed the glass around the front door before entering.

They also threatened a good

Samaritan neighbour who tried to help, and even burst into the room where boys, aged two and four, had been taken for safety and shouted at them.

The gang left empty-handed but not without threatening to return with guns and throwing bottles at a car parked outside.

One of the people at the house managed to take a picture of the gang's car as it fled that showed its registration number.

This led to the arrest of the men and they all appeared at Croydon Crown Court on November 14.

Elvin, of Feltham Road in Ashford, was jailed for 10 years after being found guilty of aggravated burglary and violent disorder.

Pepperrell, of York Way in Chessington, was found guilty of aggravated burglary. He had already admitted violent disorder and was jailed for eight years.

Gillett, of Moor Lane, Chessington, who was convicted of violent disorder, and the teenager, who admitted violent disorder, will be sentenced at the same court in December.

Investigations held into baby deaths at hospital

by TOM BARNES

tbarnes@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston Hospital has held a series of investigations into the deaths of babies in the past two years, a Kingston Guardian investigation has revealed.

The hospital has produced nine serious incident reports following infant deaths since the beginning of 2010, according to the results of a Freedom of Information request.

During that time, during which 15,000 babies were born and 30 died, a mother is also known to have died, though the hospital would not reveal further details.

Of the nine deaths, three were described as "unexpected". Seven came after the baby was born, one during labour and one was stillborn.

According to the latest statistics Kingston has a low stillborn rate of about four per 1,000 babies born, about half the national average of 7.9.

Bonnie Green, of Richmond Link, said: "Apparently Kingston has one of the lowest [stillborn rates] in our sector, which is good news."

Sad memories: Eirene Massow remembering her daughter Ruby who died at Kingston Hospital as a result of clinical negligence

"Some of the deaths are likely to be neonatal and due to extreme prematurity, but I do not know why they would be classed serious incidents."

The hospital would not say whether any maternity staff had been disciplined or dismissed as a result of the deaths, citing data protection to turn down the request.

The figures follow the case of two-day-old Lucy Wood, who died as a result of "serious failings" by obstetrician Naguib Naguib and midwife Tatyana McGill in June 2009.

The hospital was criticised earlier this year for failing to report the death to the coroner's office, leaving Lucy's distraught parents in the dark over her death.

Neither Mr Naguib nor Miss McGill were disciplined over the incident, though they no longer work at the hospital.

Eirene Massow, 39, and her husband Larry, of Cunliffe Road, Stoneleigh, successfully sued for clinical negligence after their baby Ruby's death at Kingston Hospital on April 12 last year.

A spokesman for the hospital said it had reviewed staffing levels to ensure there were sufficient midwives to provide care for women in labour.

He said: "All pregnancies are different and sadly, as with any maternity unit, there will inevitably be a small number of cases that will have complications."

"If there is a death within the unit, a thorough investigation is completed and actions are identified as necessary to improve patient care."

Street pastors are a 'force for social good'

Praise for their work: Street pastor Paul Jacobs with Chief Inspector Bill Heasman

Deadlinepix KT57971

Kingston's street pastors have been praised in a new report by university professors.

A research study by Dr Sylvia Collins-Mayo, titled Faith in Action: Street Pastors Kingston Social and Spiritual Impact Project, hailed the volunteers as "a force for social good" in the town.

The study was compiled through observing night patrols, focus groups and interviews with volunteers and young people out in Kingston.

It hailed Kingston's street pastors for providing a calming effect on young people emboldened by alcohol.

Dr Collins-Mayo wrote: "Our study suggests [Kingston's street pastors] are indeed a force for social good in Kingston and an important part of the collective effort to make Kingston town centre a safer place to be at night."

"Many of the interventions street pastors make are low level and almost domestic in nature, drawing upon the volunteers' experiences or ideas of grand/parenting."

"We cannot know how many problems would occur in the absence of their preventative measures, but it is reasonable to suppose at least some would."

Counterfeit vodka: El Peyote
Deadlinepix KT72258

Fake vodka found at Mexican restaurant

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

A Kingston bar and restaurant has had its licence revoked after being caught with counterfeit vodka.

But El Peyote, in Richmond Road, will not be closing – after applying for a new licence under a new owner.

In the same week Oceana was stripped of its licence following October's fatal stabbing, Kingston Council also banned the former owners of the Mexican restaurant from trading.

An operation by trading standards officers in September saw 150 1.5l bottles of fake Smirnoff Vodka seized from the premises.

At a Kingston Council licensing sub-committee meeting last Thursday, members stripped El Peyote owner Ercan Ucar of his right to run the establishment.

A report submitted by trading standards to the sub committee said Mr Ucar, who is believed to living in Turkey, did not exercise any meaningful control over the buying and selling of alcohol.

Under licensing rules, the restaurant has 21 days to appeal the decision, during which time it is allowed to remain open and sell alcohol.

But when the Kingston Guardian called El Peyote, new owner Noray Tuzetci said he would not be appealing the decision.

Instead, the establishment would be applying for a new licence under his name.

Mr Tuzetci said: "We are applying for a new licence and trading as normal."

Mr Tuzetci said he took over the running of El Peyote two months ago – after the vodka was seized.

He said: "We don't know about it [the counterfeit vodka]."

"It belonged to the previous owner, not us."

A Kingston Council spokesman said: "The decision for El Peyote does not take effect until the period for appeals passes, 21 days, and if they appeal, the decision does not take effect until such time as the appeal is disposed of."

"No application has been received relating to the premises being in new ownership."

'Badly treated' over street's 'rogue tree'

A Norbiton resident said his life is being made a misery by a "rogue tree" that blocks the view from his home.

But Kenneth Chattoe's request to uproot a flowering cherry tree outside his house in Linden Crescent was rejected by Kingston town neighbourhood committee.

In full bloom, the 20ft tree, planted in 1996, blocks the light into his living room, clogs his gutters with leaves, interferes with overhead phone wires and has displaced paving slabs, causing a trip hazard.

Mr Chattoe offered to pay £365 for a replacement, but refused to meet the extra £400 charge for the removal of the healthy tree.

The 75-year-old said: "I feel I am being badly treated here.

Their attitude is not rational.

"They said it was their policy only to remove trees in exceptional circumstances."

"Well these are exceptional circumstances."

A Kingston Council spokesman said it got many requests to cut trees down but applicants had to meet the cost of replacement and the removal of the old one.

CODE THE SALON

CODE MAKEOVER WINNERS

Code The Salon held a makeover competition, and here we feature one of our four lucky winners. The aim was to show how Code can re-style your look with expert cutting and advanced colour techniques.

Here we speak to the Art team at Code The Salon, and find out how the hair make-over shoot went, and show you the before and 'after' shots.

Megan Rutherford Top Stylist at Code The Salon, gave us some key points about how she created the look "With this hair cut, I wanted to keep the length but add loads of excitement, for anyone with Louise's hair type, I always go back to very precise layering. For the colour, I really wanted the 'gorgeous glam' look. I used one of our in-house colour technique - the Diamond, which enabled me to use a reddy plumb for the underneath layers, and a 'kiss kiss' red through the top layers".

Make up was done by Sarah Sheldrick... "I started by giving Louise a facial cleanse, I then used neutral tones to give her a natural look and enhance her features"

Are committees fit for purpose? No choice in pavilion

The decision of Kingston town neighbourhood committee, on November 14, to drive a cycle path through the Fairfield comes on top of a decision to change the traffic lights at the top of Knights Park Road into a mini-roundabout. Both decisions were taken against the wishes of the neighbourhood and in both cases led to petitions to send the decision to the scrutiny committee.

The decisions raise critical questions about the nature, process and costs of the neighbourhood committees.

Originally they were established so decisions affecting a neighbourhood could be made locally, taking into account the views of those living in the area.

Commendable, but this requires either that councillors on the neighbourhood committee spend more time listening to the views of those living in the area and less time pontificating, or that the ward councillors, prior to meetings, spend more time listening to the views of their constituents and reflect those views accurately in the committees itself, even if they subsequently make a different decision.

The two decisions – the cycle path and the roundabout – are paradigm examples of how councillors are turning the rationale behind neighbourhood committees into an expensive exercise in councillor complacency.

People had requested a hearing and were ignored. Liberal Democrat ward councillors made no intervention on their behalf; they could not articulate the case people were making because they had not bothered to listen or try to find out what residents thought.

The Liberal Democrat administration needs to explain whether they intend to change the neighbourhood committee process the better to hear the local view, and the Liberal Democrat ward councillors need to consider whether they intend to continue turning a deaf ear to those views.

And while they are thinking about the Fairfield decision, they might consider communicating on the sole promise that the Liberal Democrats made in the recent Grove byelection.

They pledged that they would find out who was responsible for allowing travellers on to the Fairfield over the summer, and that council-tax payers would not pay the costs. The Kingston town neighbourhood committee would be just the place to tell us how this promise has been met.

Meanwhile the Liberal Democrat administration might like to reflect on the rationale behind these costly committees, and start to ensure they are made fit for purpose.

I am writing regarding Barton Green Pavilion. I was present at the policy and resources committee meeting on November 7 to express an interest in the use of the property on behalf of our society.

The three-page report only asked for members' views on how they would wish officers to proceed in bringing the pavilion back into reasonable beneficial use, also asking members to agree to retain the property for use as a community hub.

The report also stated there had been a number of expressions of interest.

Nowhere in the report did it ask members for their agreement or vote to relocate the Kingston Environment Centre from its present building in Kingston to the vacant pavilion in New Malden.

It now appears Councillor Derek Osbourne has taken it upon himself to decide that a Kingston group should take it over as their HQ, instead of employing the democratic procedure by opening it to competition.

Rare bat species is using habitat of Seething Wells

Re: the Seething Wells filter beds public meeting.

[There was a] buzz and passion in the audience, and some very exciting news arose from more thorough surveys undertaken by the company employed by the developers (who surveyed a larger area, for a longer period, during 2012).

A new bat species has been recorded for Kingston and one that is extremely rare nationally.

This has been named as a Brandt's bat by the surveyors, although technically it is very difficult to identify unless in the hand and more properly termed a bat of the myotis genus, most likely a Brandt's bat.

This indicates that suitable foraging is found along this, the most darkest and most undisturbed stretch of the non-tidal river Thames in London.

It raises the possibility of the species hibernating within the barge tunnel (along with two additional myotis species also recorded here).

Any web search will indicate that myotis bats use tunnels for hibernating.

In addition, an amazing count of 11 noctule bats, one of our largest species, was recorded foraging across the filter beds (as many of us have witnessed during the London Bat Group batty boat trips).

Even London Wetlands Centre records indicate that in recent years only a maximum of two noctule bats exist foraging over the lagoons at any one time.

This phenomena arises out of close proximity to a roost site, which has been known since 2007.

This species has become rare in London over the last 10 years, due to habitat loss. A total of 10 bat species has now been routinely recorded foraging or roosting at the filter beds and the river environs, which is the total number of bat species commonly encountered in the London region.

There is no other site in the borough that can claim this amount of bat interest and there is yet more good news to be told.

at the ROSE

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

• Rose Theatre, High Street, Kingston; December 11, 7.30pm; £20 (pit cushions £8); call 08444 821556, visit rosetheatrekingston.org

The Rose's Christmas concert returns for a second year following its sell-out success last year with a line-up featuring some well-known stars.

The programme of yuletide fun will be introduced by chat show star and Rose patron Michael Aspel, all in aid of the Rose Theatre productions.

The new show promises to be a lively evening of festive songs, poignant poems and witty readings, with contributions from the Euphonix community choir lead by Dominic Stichbury, former Radio

Two DJ Sarah Kennedy and BBC Pride and Prejudice Mr Wickham and Rose regular Adrian Lukis.

With additional material coming from the Rose Youth Theatre and Richard Sisson, formerly the widow in Kit & the Widow, this December promises to be one not to be missed at the Kingston theatre.

Show producer Roger Chown said: "We had a very positive response last year and the 'formula' seemed to go down well with the audience."

"I hope we can make this year even better."

Back of the net

A comedy following the exciting journey of a third-choice English goalkeeper in South America will be premiering in the Cornerhouse in Surbiton next month, writes Nazia Dewji.

El Comodin – the joker card in Spanish – tells the story of young Danny who the people of the fictional South American state of Sylvania have taken under their wing as their sporting hero.

The play follows Danny through an adrenaline pumping football tournament with competitive matches against football giants Argentina, Brazil and England with the backdrop of a multi-national fizzy drinks company sponsoring the games.

But despite the football tournament trying to present a positive image of Sylvania to the world, there is still political instability in the vibrant state.

Director David Gray, from Surbiton, says: "The play suggests there is a bright future for South America, a continent too long associated only with negative images of poverty and drugs."

Performed by the Du Buffet Theatre Company, most actors have been involved in productions previously put on by the Green Theatre Company.

• El Comodin; Cornerhouse, 114 Douglas House, Surbiton; December 5-8; £8; 020 8296 9012; email elcom-tickets@hotmail.co.uk.

Conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

1. The following conditions apply to the placing of an order for insertion of advertisements in Newsquest Media Group ("Newsquest") printed or electronic publications. Each order will form a separate agreement and English law will apply. Any change to these conditions must be agreed by us in writing (which means by exchange of letter, fax or email). An "advertiser" means any person or organisation placing an advertisement on their own account or on behalf of another.

Contents

2. The advertiser confirms that the advertisement complies with all applicable legislation, regulations and codes of practice, including the codes supervised by the Advertising Standards Authority. We may reject or require changes to any advertisement so as to comply with legal or moral obligations placed on us or the advertiser; to avoid infringing the rights of a third party or any relevant code of practice; or to meet our published production and quality specifications.

3. The advertiser further confirms that:

- i) the publication of the advertisement will not breach any contract, infringe the copyright, trademark or other right of any third party and is not libelous of any person;
- ii) all licences and consents from third parties necessary for the publication of the advertisement have been obtained and paid for, including consent from living persons identified in copy or pictures (photographic or otherwise);
- iii) in respect of an investment advertisement, the contents have been approved by, or the advertiser is, and authorised person within the meaning of the Financial Services Act 1986 as amended or the advertisement is otherwise permitted under that Act.

Payment

4. All advertisements must be paid for in full at the time of booking unless credit has been agreed. The price shall be the amount fixed by our published rate card on the date of acceptance of the order plus VAT where applicable. For non-credit advertisers, we will cancel publication of an advertisement that has not been paid for on time. For credit advertisers, we will cancel publication of any future advertisements if payment is not made in accordance with our payment terms. For credit advertisers, interest will be charged on late payments at the rate of 3% above the Bank of England's base lending rate from the date payment is due together with the administration costs of collecting an overdue debt.

5. By placing an order with us, an advertising agency confirms that it contracts as principal with full authority from its client in all matters connected with the order and is responsible for all payments due. We will only accept advertisements from advertising agencies if they are recognised by us.

6. We will try to give notice of increases, but we reserve the right to change our advertising rates at any time. This will not affect contracts, including any fixed term agreement for a series of advertisements.

Box numbers

7. We will use reasonable efforts to forward replies to box numbers within a reasonable time, but we are not responsible for any failure or delay caused by circumstances beyond our reasonable control, or for any losses relating to an advertiser's business or any loss that is not reasonably foreseeable by both parties.

Cancellation

8. We will notify the advertiser of the latest time that orders can be cancelled (the "booking" deadline) and the latest time that advertising copy can be received by us ("the copy deadline"). An advertiser may cancel up until copy deadline and we will make reasonable efforts to re-sell the space, but the advertiser will be liable for the full price if the space is not sold and we will reclaim any unearned volume-based discount. Private advertisers booking by telephone or online may cancel in accordance with relevant law, but no refund shall be available after the copy deadline unless cancellation is due to our negligence. If the copy is not received by the copy deadline, we will not be liable if the advertisement does not appear, but the advertiser will remain liable to make full payment for the price of the advertisement.

9. We will try to satisfy an advertiser's request regarding the positioning of an advertisement, but no guarantee of position can be given unless agreed by us and paid for at the rate then current.

Errors

10. We are not liable for any error, misprint or non-appearance of an advertisement unless caused by our negligence, in which case the advertiser will be entitled to a re-insertion or proportionate refund. The advertiser is solely responsible for checking the advertisement on each insertion and ordering correction where necessary. Except where we have been negligent, we shall not be liable for an error or misprint that, in our reasonable opinion, does not materially detract from the advertisement. We shall not be liable in any case for losses relating to any business or public fund-raising for the advertiser, such as lost customers, revenue or profit.

Copyright

11. Advertisements are accepted on condition that we have the right to publish them online as well as in any booked titles. The copyright in work or material we contribute to or re-work for an advertisement belongs to us. We will dispose of advertiser's copy, artwork, photographs or other materials after six months unless collected.

General

12. We shall not be liable if our publishing activities are restricted or prevented by any law, act or event beyond our reasonable control (including, for example, industrial dispute). In such case, the advertiser shall accept publication when available or otherwise may cancel the order by written notice and pay only for work done and materials used.

13. We will use the advertiser's details for internal administration. Unless the advertiser tells us not to in writing at any time, we may also share details with other Newsquest companies or with carefully selected third parties, who may send information about goods and services.

14. The advertiser will be liable to pay us for all costs, losses, expenses and damages of any kind suffered or incurred by us as a result of legal claims or actions, actual or threatened, arising from the advertiser's breach of these conditions or the publications of the advertisement, unless caused by our own negligent act or failure.

15. We may cancel the order at any time if the advertiser breaches these conditions and the breach is not capable of remedy or it continues for seven days after we have given written notice of it, or if we reasonably believe the advertiser is unable to pay debts or the advertiser goes or threatens to go out of business.

Method of payment

We will be pleased to accept your payment by any of the following methods:

- CHEQUE - Made payable to NEWSQUEST (LONDON) LTD.
- BACS - Electronic Bank Transfer • CASH - Paid to one of our Branch Offices.
- CREDIT/DEBIT CARD - Please phone to pay by Visa/Mastercard/Switch/Delta

Kingston and Surbiton are popular with buyers

Good schools, transport and amenities are key factors

A new report says Londoners and those living in the south east are more optimistic about the housing market prospects than a year ago.

The report comes from the Halifax which says confidence in house price prospects is significantly stronger than it was at the beginning of the year.

The majority of those questioned think that any house price change over the next 12 months will be relatively small with two-thirds expecting any movement to be between +5 per cent and -5 per cent. The average UK house price in September 2012 was 0.3 per cent lower than in December 2011, according to the Halifax House Price Index.

Jason Tebb, Your Move's regional managing director for London backed up the findings saying property in Kingston and Surbiton was particularly popular with buyers.

He said: "The numbers of new applicants have remained high in several key desirable locations throughout south west London, most notably in areas which attract a transient population moving from central London areas to the suburbs to find value, space, and quality of life."

"Most notable of these areas has been the commuter friendly hubs of Kingston and Surbiton – desirable suburbs with excellent transport links, quality schools and the same shops and amenities as those normally associated with central London postcodes.

"This comparative value in turn drives demand and shortens supply and it is this effect which has led to a return of optimism and confidence in the market."

"These buyers are moving for reasons other than just purely financial, and it is these fundamental life changing moves which fuel the market."

"Prices are remaining stable and in some instances continuing to rise, and the best properties are selling within days, usually at closer to the asking price than had been seen in early 2012."

"The combination of all these factors has meant that buyer sentiment is the highest for some considerable time – sellers should be confident that at least in these south west London areas, their property will attract interest from some quality applicants in good financial positions."

Martin Ellis, housing economist at Halifax said: "Despite some regional differences, the general improvement in confidence in the outlook for house prices over the past year reflects the relative resilience of the UK housing market."

"Although the weak economic climate remains a significant constraint on housing demand, the low level of mortgage payments relative to income continues to provide support for house prices."

"We expect house prices to be broadly unchanged over the rest of this year and into 2013."

More than half of those surveyed said that one of the biggest obstacles to buying a home was raising a deposit (58 per cent) and concerns about job security (51 per cent).

Other obstacles were household finances (32 per cent) and the general availability of mortgages (31 per cent) as other hurdles to home buying.

Survey shows drivers are willing to break the law to make way for blues and twos What would you do in an emergency?

Almost half of motorists believe that traffic stopped at an incident should keep a lane space free for emergency service vehicles, according to the latest poll by road safety charity the Institute of Advanced Motorists. They also agree that those who fail to get out of the way of an emergency vehicle should be fined. This approach is being trialled in Europe.

Thirty-five per cent of respondents admit that they don't know the current rules on how to deal with an approaching emergency service vehicles. This is reflected in the results with a quarter of people saying they would go through a red light to let an emergency vehicle through – which is illegal, and almost a third have entered a bus lane to allow access to an emergency vehicle which often results in fines.

Forty-four per cent of motorists believe that it is unfair to prosecute someone who crosses a red light to let an emergency services vehicle through. A further 31 per cent of people feel that this should be made legal.

But overall, the largest group of respondents (41 per cent) believe that the law should not be changed in regards to crossing red lights for emergency vehicles.

It is illegal to enter a bus lane during its active hours of operation to let an emergency vehicle past, and you can be fined if you do. Eighty-six per cent of motorists believe that this is unfair.

Other results show:

- 74 per cent of people will pull over where possible when they see an emergency vehicle approaching.

- Half of motorists would not drive through a red light if an emergency vehicle approached them from behind.

- 82 per cent of people are aware that it is illegal to cross a red light to let an emergency services vehicle past.

Findings reveal that, while most people are aware of the laws surrounding emergency vehicles, around half are willing to flout them to let the emergency services through.

IAM chief executive Simon Best, said: "Fining people for pulling into empty bus lanes so that life-saving services can get through is just plain wrong.

"Most drivers quite rightly want to get out of the way. Simply catching and penalising drivers who break the rules to let emergency vehicles pass will not serve to educate them – people must understand the rules to abide by them. Road users must be on the look-out for emergency service vehicles and move out of the way where possible, but laws have been put in place for the safety of all road users.

"Our survey shows clear support for more clarity and new ways of ensuring police, fire and ambulance personnel get to incidents with maximum speed and minimum risk to themselves and others."

Kingston's Giles scales new heights

Kingston table tennis star Marcus Giles, right, lived up to his top billing to win the National Table Tennis Championship cadet boys singles title in Hatfield on Saturday.

The Hollyfield School, seeded number one for the event, beat Lincolnshire's Tom Jarvis 11-9 11-13 11-7 11-7 in a thrilling final to secure the biggest win of his career.

Jarvis gained some revenge in the doubles as he and partner Luke Savill beat Giles and his team-mate Hugo Pang 11-9 11-8 10-12 6-11 7-11.

On target: Surbiton's Olympic bronze medallist Georgie Twigg SP70920

Olympians double up

Team GB Olympians Rob Moore and Georgie Twigg produced a match-winning double act for Surbiton's men and women at the weekend.

Moore scored the winner as his side beat East Grinstead 3-2 to move them up to sixth place in the Men's Hockey League Premier Division and within touching distance of the play-off places.

While Olympic bronze medallist Twigg bagged a second half brace to secure a 4-2 triumph for Surbiton Ladies over struggling Olton & West Warwicks.

Skipper Tim Deakin's men came from 2-1 down to win after the visitors had wiped out Rob Schilling's early opener.

Goals from Vicky Bryant and captain Sarah Haycroft, had meant the scores were level for the ladies before Twigg's intervention.

The men and women travel to Loughborough Students and Bowdon Hightown respectively this weekend, before the mid-season break.

Marching orders

Red missed: Simon Huckle heads to the Kingstonian dressing room after his red card on Saturday made his side's FA Trophy task much harder and compounded the misery of Andre McCollin's early penalty miss Kingstonian boss Alan Dowson has vowed to bring in defensive reinforcements after watching his men concede four goals for the second week in succession.

Ks crashed out of the FA Trophy after a 4-0 home defeat to Blue Square Premier side Dartford at the weekend after last week's 4-0 reverse at struggling Thurrock.

It could have been different had Andre McCollin scored an early penalty and Simon Huckle not received his marching orders on the half hour mark.

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

"When you play big games like this you have to take your chances. The penalty miss cost us and the sending off changed the game," said Dowson ahead of Saturday's trip to Canvey Island.

"It is all about the league now. We have to get back in the top five and stay there.

"I need to get a centre back in. I keep blaming the back four, but who else can I blame when you see the type of goals we are letting in?"

Chris Neilson led the way with four golds as he won the U16s 50m butterfly, 200m freestyle, 100m butterfly and 200m individual medley.

FOOTBALL: Corinthian Casuals have now gone four league games without a win after a 1-0 home defeat to Crawley Down Gatwick on Saturday. Boss Kim Harris' men are two points above bottom-club Walton Casuals in the table and they head to Whitstable Town this weekend.

ATHLETICS: Kingston AC & Polytechnic Harriers are in action in the Surrey Ladies Cross Country League in Nonsuch Park on Saturday and at the Downs League meet in Epsom on Sunday.
